

DAILY COURIER.

BY W. N. HALDEMAN,
OFFICE: 109 WEST JEFFERSON ST.
Between Third and Fourth.

S. B. BUCKNER, Editor.

National Democratic Nominations

FOR PRESIDENT,
HORATIO SEYMOUR,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
F. P. BLAIR, JR.,
OF MISSOURI.

Democratic Electors.

FOR THE STATE AT LARGE

COL. FRANK WOLFORD, of Casey,

HON. JESSE D. BRIGHT, of Carroll,

DISTRICT ELECTORS.

1st Dist.—J. M. BIGGER, of McCracken.

2nd Dist.—R. E. BRADLEY, of Hopkins.

4th Dist.—A. H. FIELD, of Bell.

5th Dist.—ROBERT MALLORY, Oldham.

7th Dist.—G. W. CRADOCK, of Franklin.

8th Dist.—HARRISON COOKELL, of Edill.

9th Dist.—JOHN M. RICE, of Lawrence.

FOR CONGRESS,
BOYD WINCHESTER,
OF LOUISVILLE.

THURSDAY MORNING, — SEPT. 10th, 1868.

The Idea which Fixes the Public Mind Upon the Democratic Party as the Only Hope of the Country.

It is now evident to all that the Republicans and their party gave up the idea that the Government was jealous of the so-called "slave power," a desire to prevent the extension of slavery, and to place that hated institution in the hands of the South in the beginning of its ultimate extinction." The idea is still the hope and purpose which induced a majority of the Northern people to join the Republican standard. They did not join the disfranchisement of the "slave-holding power," nor the compact of abolition, or the slaves, or the or without compensation to the owners. But the Republican party, having got possession of the Government, has done all this—has done all this in the name of any hope of conservation which the Government had or could have.

It will repeat that Government is to its former supporters, and much of the burden which oppresses the people are the consequences of the temper and manner in which the Republican party has done its work.

Is the agency best fitted for our present object? Can it not exist, flourish, and, even, triumph, without the support of the South? Many of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant could answer satisfactorily they might be content with his decision. If the temper and manners of the Republicans were to change, blow, and, even, triumph, without the support of the South, then the

Republicans are to this question, not to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished

which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished

which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished

which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished

which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

The situation has changed.

The work in hand requires a different temper and a different order of statesmen-

ship. There is no institution to be abolished

which is not a support. Many

of those which have, the Government, and much

of the burden which oppresses the people are

the consequences of the temper and manner

in which the Republican party has done its work.

These are the questions which fill the public

mind, and if the supporters of Gen. Grant

could answer satisfactorily they might be

content with his decision. If the temper and

manners of the Republicans were to change,

blow, and, even, triumph, without

the support of the South, then the

Republi-

cans are to this question, not

to be content to do, but, upon what they are to do, upon what they are to do.

DAILY COURIER.

THURSDAY MORNING, - SEPT. 10th, 1865.

MEMPHIS.

THE FRAUD INVESTIGATIONS.

The President Desires a Thorough Sifting.

A Sharp Game by Collector Smythe

Bounty Claims Settled.

The Pardon of John Allen.

A Petition for the Pardon of Callicott.

&c., &c., &c., &c.

Special Telegraphic Correspondence from the Loupville Courier.

THE FRAUD INVESTIGATIONS.

Washington, Sept. 8.—On Monday night the police arrested a man named Augustine Byrne, a hotel lodger in this city, on suspicion of conspiracy. He was arraigned for preliminary examination to find out if the policeman who arrested him testified to finding a pistol and a quantity of ammunition secreted on the premises. The pistol was removed for trial.

Jeff Davis was arraigned from Liverpool.

THE DUNCASTER RACES.

London, Sept. 9.—The weather at the Doncaster races was favorable.

The meeting was up again this afternoon. The midgets promised a decided win for the St. Leger stake, which was won by Mr. Graham's silv' formosa, and he was a little over 15. Time 3 minutes 17 seconds.

Mr. F. P. D. Smith, the Spy fourth, was fourth.

Municipal stakes were won by Miss Venture, the corporate plate by Mrs. the Broadgate Park stakes by Cawood, and for Mrs. May, the Royal, and Lord Palmerston a dark horse.

Mr. J. H. Smith, the Spy, was fourth.

Mr. J. H. Smith, the Spy, was fourth.